THE TWIN BATTALION SYSTEM.

The occupation of Cyprus, save the Army and Nam Gazette, will derange still more the twinbattalion system, which has never really been thoroughly carried out. The only chance of working the present system is to link at loast four, if not more, battalions together, for there is no clasticity in the existing arrangement which is liable to be upset by the merest accident. It is, however, a question whether a brigade consisting simply of a battalion of the Line, ita-Depot, a Militia battalion, and a Volunteer battalion, would not, after all, answer all purposes. The great advantage of such a system would be that men on re-engaging or even anxious to exchange Militia for Line service, would not be deterred from doing so by the four that they might any day be transferred to a Line: regiment of which they knew nothing. Practical and experienced soldiers are manimous in stating that there is no greater deterrent from enlisting than this fear. If it be urged that it is necesgary to have some means of suddenly increasing the strength of a regiment, the answer is simple

HONGRONG, SEPTEMBEE 26TH, 1878.

Such an audacious attack on property as, other justice to rehear the case as laid down in that which took place in Wing Lok-street yesterday morning has not been perpetrated in the Colony for many long years. Matters have surely reached a climax when a band of desperadoes armed with guns, of Mosses. J. S. Cox, C. T. Denecke, and P. R. swords, spears, and stinkpots can assemble and hold a street for some time before it is possible to disperse them. The scizure of the steam launch was an appropriate consummation to the daring defiance given to the Authorities by these misereants. The Police were wholly unprepared for such an unexpected and desperate assault, and hence the robbers were enabled for some time to have things pretty much their own way. The Police showed plenty of courage and no the appointment of Mr. D. H. TINGLISH AND CHINESE DICTIONARY. WITH THE PUNTI AND MANDARIN PRONUNCIATION. 1480 An Anglo-Chinese Dictionary, published at the Daily Press Office, Hongkong.

For comprehensiveness and practical service this Work stands unrivalled. All the new words which the Chinese have to late years been compelled to coin to express the numerous objects in machinery, photography, telegraphy and in science generally, which the rapid advance of foreign relations has imposed upon them, are here given in extense. Each and every word is fully illustrated and explained, forming exercises for students of a most instructive nature. Both the Court and Punti pronunciations are given; the accents being carefully marked on the best principle hithorto attained. The typography displays the success of an attempt to make the Chinese and English type correspond in the size of body, thereby effecting a vast economy of space, achieving a clearness not previously and vacant spaces which have heretofore characterised Chinase publications. For practical purposes the arrangement of the work is so complete, that a reference to its pages enables a person who understands English to communicate effectively with natives who understand nothing but Chinese. In this respect the work will be found indispensable to all Europeans residing in China, and to the nativesthemselves it explains subjects fully with which very few indeed of them are perfectly acquainted. To parties resident in England and interested in China it cannot but be invaluable occasion-To illustrate the vast scope of the work, the
